First Time in History of American Occupation Natives Control Philippine Commission

MAJORITY AT PRESENT

This Status Gives 'National' Assembly in Session Opportunity To Prove Stability

Theodero Yangco, the wealthy Filipino who inspected sugar plantation in the environs of Honolulu, during his short stay here while the Chiyo Maru, en route to the mainland, was in port, is going to Washington to help lobby for the passage of the much discussed and now famous Jones Bill. Senor Yangeo is an ardent advocate of independence for the Philippines and dependence for the Philippines and while he was in Manila he took par-ticular pains to interview some of the leaders of his people here to learn of their prosperity and social status in these Islands. Before his departure Senor Yangco found the aentiment strong here for Philippine Independ-ence, but he also learned that as a colony the Filipinos in Hawaii were prosperous and thoroughly contented with their lot. The men he interviewed spoke highly of the treatment accorded to Filipinos on the plantations; howthe day when the Philippines would be an independent nation and they could return home and five under the new order of things which they expect the Jones Bill to inaugurate.

Change Of Government Policy It is now a little more than two years since Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison announced to a de-lighted crowd of more than 50,000 filipinos gathered on the Luneta, in Manila, the policy of the new administration in the handling of the insular affairs, which was to give to the untives of the islands a majority in the appointive (Philippine) commission the appointive (Philippine) commission with this game. They seemed to think of the islands and thus in the upper as well as in the lower house of the assembly secure them a majority representation.

The step taken by the President of The step taken by the President of the United States was of deep significance to the Filipine people, and Mr. Yangco said while here that during the two years that the natives have held control in both branches of the Philippine Assembly "experience has shown that his action was justified and his confidence in the ability of the leaders of the Filipine people not misplaced." But it is exceedingly doubtful whether either President Wilson or his advisers foresaw that the time would come when the assembly's upper would come when the assembly's upper that Boyle was implicated in the game, house (Philippine commission) would I certainly shall fine him the same as convene for regular session with two the other men.".

When the realignment was made in when the realignment was made in the Philippine commission almost immediately following the delivery of the President's message, Filipinos were chosen for five of the seats in that house, while only four were filled by name adorned the poker table. He also produced to the court two decks of American incumbents. Thus constituted by produced to the court two decks of sels sailed for Buenos Ayres, La Quay and other destinated that body has done its work through marked cards, which were found in the ed, that boffy has done its work through two sessions of the legislature in manner that would compare favorably with the records of former commiszions, Mr. Yangco thinks.

Filipinos Control Commission On the sixteenth of last October the present session of the third assembly of the Philippines convened, The assembly, as in the past, is composed entirely of Filipines. In the commission, which acts as the upper house, Governor General Harrison and Vice-Governor Martin are the only American members, the full power for the achievement of a record of either construction or obstruction lying in the hands of the five Filipino members of the commission. Two of the latter must always vote with the American commissioners if the voice of the Americans is to prevail in framing the laws of the country.
